INTRODUCTION

THE appearance of volume three completes the publication of Cavaliers and Pioneers: Abstracts of Virginia Land Patents and Grants, a work supported by Agnes Bernadine Sitterding and prepared by Nell Marion Nugent, who was custodian of the Land Office from 1925 to 1958. She had planned to abstract the seventeenth- and eighteenth-century patent books in a series of five volumes. Her abstracts of patent books 1 through 5 were published as volume one in 1934. Type was set for patent books 6 through 14, but then circumstances caused Miss Sitterding to abandon the project. The corrected page proofs survived. From them the Virginia State Library published the abstracts of patent books 6, 7, and 8 as volume two in 1977. Volume three contains all the remaining abstracts, for patent books 9 through 14.¹

Researchers acquainted with volumes one and two of Cavaliers and Pioneers will notice a major change in the records abstracted in volume three. The Virginia Land Office records chronicle seventeenth-century immigration, but, because the headright system fell into desuetude, extensive lists of immigrants generally are not found in eighteenth-century land patents. On June 21, 1699, the governor and Council established the treasury right, whereby a person paying five shillings to the auditor gained "the same liberty to take up and patent fifty acres of lands which [he] would otherwise have had for the Importacon of any of his Majesties Subjects into this Dominion." In this volume the earliest notice of this policy appears (at page 26) in the note affixed to a June 6, 1699, patent issued to Joseph Perry: "3 rights paid for to Mr. Auditor Byrd as by certificate." Mention of the purchase of treasury rights appears again in several April 1700 patents (at page 37), and with increasing frequency thereafter. The revival of the treasury right in 1699—by which rights to large quantities of land could be obtained without transporting settlers into the colony—and the opening of Northern Neck lands about 1690 contributed to the formation of the huge estates held by members of Virginia's eighteenth-century elite.²

1. Nell Marion Nugent, Cavaliers and Pioneers: Abstracts of Virginia Land Patents and Grants, vol. 1 [1623–1666] (Richmond, 1934; reprint ed., Baltimore, 1974); vol. 2 [1666–1695] (Richmond, 1977). Publication of vol. 1 superseded a series of Nugent's abstracts published under the title Cavaliers and Pioneers: A Calendar of Virginia Land Grants, 1623–1800, 6 nos. (Richmond, 1929–1931); all information in the serial publication is found in vol. 1.

Two other changes are reflected in the abstracts contained in this volume. First, on April 15, 1699, the practice of allowing headrights for the importation of blacks was discontinued. Having decided that the “taking up of Land” was a privilege “restrained to His Majesty’s Subjects comeing to inhabite in this His Colony and Dominion,” the governor and Council “resolved, and accordingly Established for a Rule, that His Majesty’s Land in this Colony ought not to be granted to any others then His Christian Subjects comeing to reside here.” Second, in patent books 10 through 14 the clerks distinguished between new land, old land (which previously had been owned), lapsed land (which had been patented previously, but not settled within three years), and escheat land (title to which had returned to the crown when the holder died without heir or was convicted of felony).³

Nell Marion Nugent’s abstracts of patent books 9 through 14 are reproduced photographically from the corrected page proofs. Arthur Barnes, Joy Dickinson Barnes, Suzanne Smith Boyd, Lucille Gaines, Patricia Vail Higgs, and Susan Oglesby indexed the text. Susan Bracey Sheppard collated and photocopied their index cards to prepare printer’s copy. Type for the index was set from, and proofread against, the photocopied cards. Emily J. Salmon and Sandra Gioia Treadway guided the index through the press. The library is deeply indebted to the estate of Agnes Bernadine Sitterding for cooperation in bringing this final fruit of her project into print.

Convenient accounts of the treasury right and the Northern Neck lands are in Fairfax Harrison, Virginia Land Grants: A Study of Conveyancing in Relation to Colonial Politics (Richmond, 1925). In 1948 the Land Office records were transferred from the Capitol to the Archives Division of the Virginia State Library, and in 1952 the General Assembly assigned the duties of the register of the Land Office to the State Librarian. A guide to these records, and to finding aids for post-1732 and Northern Neck land patents and grants, is Daphne S. Gentry, comp., Virginia Land Office Inventory (Richmond, [1973]).

3. Executive Journals, 1:420. The colonial procedures for patenting land or claiming escheat land are described in the introduction to Cavaliers and Pioneers, vol. 2.
